Host a Barbecue for Prostate Cancer

September is International Prostate Cancer Awareness Month, and once again, the Prostate Cancer Foundation of Australia (PCFA) is encouraging all Australians to host a Barbecue for Prostate Cancer.

Helping the fight against prostate cancer is simple. At any time throughout September, gather your family, friends, community group, colleagues or teammates for a fun barbecue and ask each guest to make a donation.

The funds you raise will help PCFA continue to fund vital, world class Australian research into the cause, treatment and prevention of prostate cancer.

Prostate cancer is the most common male cancer diagnosed in Australia. It is estimated that this year alone, almost 20,000 Australian men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer, and tragically, more than 3,300 will lose their life to this disease.

Prostate cancer is a male disease, but the effect of just one diagnosis is far-reaching. Wives and partners, brothers and sisters, sons and daughters, grandchildren and friends – all are impacted.

You can make a difference. By simply hosting a Barbecue for Prostate Cancer, together we can help fund Australian research that aims to reduce the impact of this disease on all Australians.

To find out more, or to register your Barbecue for Prostate Cancer, visit www.prostate.org.au, or call 1300 00 PCFA (7232).

The difference is you!
